

Debate Code of Conduct

In order for the debate to comply with the law and with the Civil Service Code, you must not enter:

- Party political material. The Downing Street website is a Government site. Party political content cannot be published, under the normal rules governing the Civil Service.
- potentially libellous, false, or defamatory statements;
- information that may be protected by an injunction or court order;
- material that is potentially confidential, commercially sensitive, or which may cause personal distress or loss;
- any commercial endorsement, promotion of any product, service or publication;
- the names of individual officials of public bodies, unless they are part of the senior management of those organisations;
- the names of family members of elected representatives or officials of public bodies;
- the names of individuals, or information where they may be identified, in relation to criminal accusations;
- language which is offensive, intemperate, or provocative. This not only includes obvious swear words and insults, but any language to which people reading it could reasonably take offence. Our objective is encourage constructive debate focusing on substantive arguments articulated succinctly, from a neutral perspective and free from personal abuse.
